Remote Team Orchestration

Today, teams need to deliver an increasing set of strategic goals as quickly as possible, without compromising operational resilience or business as usual.

This is particularly important when you have virtual teams, whether as part of normal operations or as a result of a major disruption to business, such as a disaster or pandemic.

Remote working can create a wealth of challenges for businesses, from collaboration and productivity to secure application access and network latency. To execute critical work successfully, businesses need to enable virtual teams to operate seamlessly without face-to-face collaboration.

The Cutover platform brings teams together to help them plan, rehearse, orchestrate and analyze critical work quickly and effectively. By eliminating the need for static spreadsheets, calls and long email chains, Cutover empowers teams to move quickly with confidence - no matter where they are.

Thank you, Cutover. Your platform has been absolutely foundational to everything we achieved this past weekend where the vast majority of the staff were remote. Trying to execute such a complex, multi-threaded and cross-party migration without Cutover would not have been possible.
