

SCOIR

Expand college access. Simplify college admission. Improve collegiate outcomes.

Scoir is an online college guidance management system designed to expand college access and improve collegiate outcomes. Scoir supports students and parents through the college search, planning, and application process while providing counseling staff with the information and tools they need to support families.

The screenshot displays a user interface for managing college applications. At the top, there are controls for 'Select All', 'Actions', and '10 results', along with a 'sorted by Due Date' dropdown. The main content is a list of four college entries, each with a logo, name, location, application type, due date, and document status. Each entry also includes an 'Applicant Summary' and a 'Ready to Download' or 'Ready to Send' section with corresponding buttons.

Why is this important?

A lack of college guidance resources coupled with inadequate systems and processes leave students and families ill-equipped to navigate college admissions, as evidenced by the following national statistics:

- 44% of high school graduates enroll in 4-year institutions; just two-thirds earn a diploma in 6 years (Sources: NCES, NSC)
- 27% of students who enroll in a 4-year institution will transfer to another institution; only 44% of them will earn a diploma (Source: NSC)
- 23% of high school graduates enroll in 2-year institutions; only 40% earn a diploma in 6 years (Sources: NCES, NSC)
- 19% of students who begin at a 2-year institution earn a bachelor's degree within 6 years (Source: NSC)
- Less than half of high achieving, low-income students apply to any selective college; overall, 43% of college-bound students undermatch (Sources: Hoxby-Avery; Kang-Torres)
