Assessment is a key component of a quality academic system. To support an effective learning cycle, educators must know where students are, in order to determine where they need to go. Schools and districts use a number of assessments – interim, formative, diagnostic, and summative – to inform daily instruction, determine student placement, guide planning, and determine whether students are on track toward learning goals.

CenterPoint provides a holistic solution to build educator and leader capacity. With support from CenterPoint, educators and leaders develop “Assessment Literacy” which has an immediate impact on teaching and learning.

ASSESSMENT LITERACY:
When educators understand how to select or create appropriate assessments for the needs of their students and are able to accurately analyze and evaluate the results, they are empowered to make informed instructional decisions to close achievement gaps.

CenterPoint Education Solutions is a non-profit organization whose mission is to reduce educational inequity regardless of zip code. Our team of assessment and content experts work with educators, leaders, and school communities to build assessment literacy skills to optimize student learning.

Our trainings help address these common assessment questions:
• With so many types of assessments, how do I know which one to use and when?
• What makes a high-quality assessment?
• What do all these sets of data mean and how do they connect?
• What if one test tells me something different than another test?
• How do I use assessment data to guide my daily instruction? To group students? To plan ahead?
• How does this data help me predict performance on summative assessments?

CenterPoint offers interactive virtual live and pre-recorded webinars, self-guided courses, and on-site sessions (when in-person training is possible) to build capacity for assessment literacy.
ASSESSMENT LITERACY TRAINING

CenterPoint leads administrators, school and district leaders, and educators through focused workshops that build assessment literacy and impact teaching and learning both immediately and toward future outcomes.

TRAINING FOR TEACHERS & COACHES

As teachers focus on day-to-day strategies of measuring what students know and developing personalized instructional plans to bridge any learning gaps, we work with them to:

- choose the correct assessments to match instructional goals
- consider reliability and validity,
- understand how to administer assessments to the whole class or to sub-groups in hybrid learning environments.
- analyze data to identify student learning gaps
- use data to build instructional plans to fill learning gaps.

TRAINING FOR DISTRICT & SCHOOL LEADERS

Leaders need a comprehensive system of assessments that serve multiple purposes. This includes measuring student achievement and educator effectiveness, and ensuring comparability and consistency across schools and classrooms. We help leaders to:

- ensure a balanced and coherent system of assessments
- use a variety of data sources to inform system-wide decision making
- maintain focus on student achievement through staff capacity building
