NARCOTICS TRACKING

Stay compliant and meet controlled substance tracking demands by replacing paper log books

- How confident are you in the safety and security of your Controlled Substance audits?
- When a question arises, do you search through pages of transactions with illegible signatures in a logbook?
- How easily can you be notified of a discrepancy?

Maintain a true chain of custody history

Provide your Medical Director peace of mind by recording the receipt, movement, administration and final disposition of each unique controlled substance.

Quickly report on the transaction history of your personnel handling controlled substances as well as the detailed chain-of-custody records for each individual substance received into and tracked through your operation.

A clear record of every transaction verified securely provides added reliability and confidence. Single or dual verification options include digital signature, password and pin or biometric fingerprint.

Manage the receipt and movement of controlled substances

Track and identify substances as you receive them from a vendor or even from a hospital pharmacy through a 1-for-1 exchange. Substances can be moved between safes or loaded into boxes for field transfers between crew members. Operative IQ provides flexible options to meet your shift change needs whether you require a 2-person exchange, check-in of narcotics boxes to a supervisor or secure boxes on your vehicles for oncoming crew to pick up and audit.

"I think Operative IQ has helped us to become leaner, buy time back into our productivity for our daily job functions and it has helped us reduce the amount of redundancy and the workload we have to do to ensure our narcotic accountability is strong. From my perspective, it enhances provider safety, patient safety and safety of our EMS system." : Chivas Guillote, EMS Executive and Nurse Practitioner - Harris County Emergency Corps
