BUCKET TRUCK NIGHT TRANSPORT SAFETY.

- » Because of the the visibility challenges during night transports, each bucket truck and all personnel are equipped with items to make them more visible.
- » Bucket trucks feature amber strobe lights, while spotlights are used to illuminate what's being moved so the oversize load can pass through.
- » All personnel wears company-issued high-visibility reflective clothing so they're easily spotted at night.

EMPLOYEE SAFETY PRACTICES.

- » Bucket truck night transports are scheduled during hours typically spent sleeping, posing a challenge for personnel escorting an oversize load at night.
- » Employees are restricted from working day shifts before or after their night escort to ensure they've gotten enough rest.
- » This improves alertness and readiness on the part of all employees while avoiding costly or dangerous accidents that could occur due to exhaustion.

COORDINATION WITH LOCAL AUTHORITIES.

- » Because night transports are sometimes attributed to local regulations, efficient bucket truck escort services coordinate with local entities to ensure the transport is legally authorized.
- » Some state transportation departments require that large cargo is moved overnight, and local utility companies must be informed of when cable and phone lines will be moved.
- » Oversize load escort services remain in constant contact with all stakeholders to minimize disruptions to night transports.
