

We are looking for a Front End Web Developer to join our rapidly growing Product Development Team here at Rosterfy!

About Us

Rosterfy is a global software company, providing an industry-leading, end-to-end volunteer and workforce management solution to some of the world's biggest events, nonprofits and organizations. We are growing rapidly, with clients throughout APAC, the United States, the Middle East, and Europe. We are a SaaS web-based tech product, headquartered in Melbourne, Australia, with team members based across multiple continents across the globe.

We view our company as revolutionizing a sector that is prime for disruption by providing cutting-edge technology to organizations in need of a change. Rosterfy saves our clients time while increasing workforce engagement and retention year on year. At a time where technology and data holds great power, it is crucial that companies are true and responsible in a mission that technology is an enabler of positive change for people, the environment and organizations (not just profit). Rosterfy has this by the bucket loads.

The product has been built and improved over the last 6 years. This is with web technologies; Vue.js, PHP (Laravel), AWS cloud services.

The Role

Key skills required for the role:

- Strong experience in a Front-End Development position
- Proven skills with the JavaScript language, and frameworks (Vue, React, Angular, Ember etc.)
- Experience working with Vue.js is essential
